

2021 Acura RDX A-Spec Delivers Luxury
Weaver Brothers Motor Company

The 2021 Acura RDX A-Spec offers a compelling combination of luxury, technology and everyday practicality, making it an appealing option for drivers who want premium features without paying a new-vehicle price.

Weaver Motors Inc. of Kirbyville has the silver RDX listed at $26,995. The vehicle has 70,568 miles, seats five and is identified by stock number 4076A. Its vehicle identification number is 5J8TC1-H60ML015509.

Although the body style is listed as a wagon, the RDX is generally classified as a compact luxury crossover SUV. That distinction gives it the useful interior space and elevated seating position many buyers want while retaining a sportier character than a traditional family utility vehicle.

Under the hood is a turbocharged 2.0-liter four-cylinder engine paired with an automatic transmission. This model is equipped with front-wheel drive. The turbocharger helps the engine deliver stronger acceleration while maintaining the efficiency expected from a modern four-cylinder powertrain.

The A-Spec trim gives the RDX a more athletic appearance inside and out. Its silver exterior provides a clean, understated look, while the cabin offers leather upholstery and seating for five. Adjustable head restraints are provided at every seating position, and rear wipers add convenience during wet weather.

Comfort features include automatic temperature control, dual-zone front air conditioning and a power moonroof. Those amenities give the RDX the upscale feel buyers expect from Acura while making it practical for commuting, family travel and longer highway trips.

Technology is another strength. The vehicle includes a navigation system, premium audio, wireless phone connectivity and an emergency communication system. Rear parking sensors and a rearview camera can help when maneuvering in tight spaces, while automatic high-beam headlights improve convenience during nighttime travel.

For buyers moving from a mainstream SUV into a premium model, the RDX offers a meaningful step up without becoming overly complicated. Controls, climate features and driver aids are aimed at daily usability, while five-passenger seating preserves versatility. The combination makes this Acura suitable for workday commuting, weekend errands and longer trips with passengers and luggage comfortably aboard.

The 2021 RDX also came standard with AcuraWatch, a suite of driver-assistance systems. Features include the Collision Mitigation Braking System with forward-collision warning, adaptive cruise control with low-speed follow, Lane Keeping Assist System, Road Departure Mitigation and lane-departure warning. These systems are designed to support an attentive driver and do not replace safe driving practices.

Safety ratings add to the RDX's appeal. The 2021 model earned the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety's Top Safety Pick+ designation, the organization's highest award at the time. It received good ratings across the crashworthiness evaluations cited for the award, while its front crash-prevention system earned a superior rating. The Jewel Eye LED headlights fitted to the A-Spec trim also received a good rating.

The National Highway Traffic Safety

Administration awarded the 2021 RDX an overall five-star safety rating. It earned five stars in side-crash testing and four stars for frontal-impact protection.

When new, the 2021 RDX A-Spec had a starting manufacturer's suggested retail price of about $44,300. Used-market values can vary considerably based on mileage, condition, equipment, vehicle history and regional demand. At $26,995, this example sits within the commonly cited market range for the model.

For shoppers comparing luxury crossovers, the RDX A-Spec brings together attractive styling, a turbocharged engine, a well-equipped cabin and a strong list of safety technologies. Its mileage should make a professional pre-purchase inspection and vehicle-history review important steps before purchase.

Buyers may call 409-345-3205 to confirm availability, current mileage, equipment, condition and final pricing.
